41|40 Arts & Cultural District

We're happy to see you in Terre Haute!

On December 17, 2018, the Indiana Arts Commission formally recognized Terre Haute as one of ten cities in Indiana with an official arts and cultural district designation.

The 41|40 Arts and Cultural District radiates out from the Crossroads of America—the intersection of the historic U.S. Highways 40 and 41, encompassing Terre Haute's downtown, the brewery district, and much of Indiana State University's campus. 41|40 is located just a few blocks from the scenic Wabash River—inspiration for Indiana's state song, "On the Banks of The Wabash, Far Away" composed by native son, Paul Dresser. The district enjoys a rich history that emerges out of a deep and lasting cultural core and serves as both a geographic and cultural center. We proudly pay tribute to our history by naming the district after that intersection, known today as 7th & Wabash.

We hope this brochure will guide you as you embark on a discovery of arts & culture at the Crossroads of America.

"It is my pleasure to welcome you to the 41|40 Arts and Cultural District in downtown Terre Haute. For over 200 years Terre Haute has been a welcoming destination. Today the District remains so, with arts and culture at the heart of it all. We hope that you'll take a little time to explore the area.

Just a short walk in any direction will lead you to the treasures we celebrate today – cultural museums for all ages and interests, public sculptures, murals, galleries, events, magnificent architecture, and more. The District is a special place and we're so glad to have you be part of it."

-Mayor Duke Bennett

Terre Haute

What place is lovelier than Terre Haute:
The foliage of her many trees,
That trembles as the cooling breezes float
Across the grain fields' yellow seas?

The gentle river that caressing sings
Past shop and mill and waving corn
Each day some happy inspiration brings;
Each day a thousand hopes are born.

Here workers wend their way to pleasant homes;
And students spend romantic days.
Here lofty spires and gilded domes
Reach up to touch the sun's first rays.

Here many a youth and maid their faith have kept,
Labored, lived happily, grown gray.
Here bolder ones with keener eyes have crept
To paths where fame and fortune lay.

Vast growing fields and treasures in the ground,
Art, learning, too, here find abode;
And many a forward-looking son has found
The gifts the gods have here bestowed.

What various aspirations man pursues!
It matters not what visions lure,
Here may ambition all its talents use;
Here is the world in miniature.
